

How to grow Raspberries

Raspberries like well drained soils and free of weeds.

Plant your raspberry canes
in a sunny position.
They do not like shade.

You can buy summer fruiting plants which will provide fruit early summer and autumn fruiting plants which will provide fruits August to October.

You can buy the fruit canes ready to plant.

These need to be placed in a hole
the depth of the pot.

Draw the soil around the plant make sure this is compacted around the plant. You can do this using your foot.

Each plant should be 18 inches apart.

Raspberry canes like to be supported.

Put a cane next to each plant and tie a small piece of string or plastic tie around both.

When the season is over leave the plants until February and then cut them back to ground level. This will allow new shoots to grow.
