What makes this home unique

At this specialist PMLD home, everyone is encouraged and supported to take part in activities in the local area. Popular outings include visits to Brecon Monkey Sanctuary, the Butterfly Farm, local museums and nearby pubs.

Individuals are supported to create personalised care plans that increase choice, independence and control over their lives. Every part of daily life is viewed as an opportunity to learn, with the support team working closely with each person, their family and healthcare professionals to help them achieve their goals. People are encouraged to connect with the wider community, helping to build confidence, social skills and communication skills.

This home is very active with people taking dance classes, visiting friends at other local homes and there is a good relationship with the local fire station with regular visits to see the trucks and equipment. Cheering their sports teams on at the pub or getting together in the garden or at local community centre groups are also favourite activities at this home.

“The most important thing for me is seeing the people we support being as independent as possible and seeing them participate in activities that are meaningful to them.”

- Home Manager

“The people we support are non-verbal and when asked how they feel about living at Pen y Hill, they used hand gestures to give us the thumbs up.”
